

The North Shore Stress & Anxiety Clinic is looking for experienced psychologists to join our busy private practice in the Metro Vancouver area of beautiful British Columbia. We are located on the North Vancouver waterfront at Lonsdale Quay. Our location has free parking nearby and is just steps away from the SeaBus terminal and a bus loop, making it easily accessible by car or public transit.

Our clinic is committed to providing effective, evidence-based treatment for anxiety disorders, mood disorders and stress-related problems. We provide a wide range of assessment and treatment options to children, adolescents, adults, couples, and families.

NSSAC has a strong team-based approach with ample opportunities for peer support, professional development events for continuing competency credits and sharing of clinical resources. Services included for our clinicians include a full-time office manager who assists with booking of appointments, mail service, basic office supplies, free wireless internet and free access to printing, photocopying and fax. We also provide access to a private, secure server which contains a wealth of clinician resources including questionnaires and client handouts as well as the ability to store and access files remotely.

NSSAC receives a steady flow of referrals from a large number of sources, including self-referrals, physicians, psychiatrists, RCMP, Veteran Affairs, third party providers and more) and we have waitlists for all of our services. All clinicians have access to these general referrals in our thriving practice and our clinicians are generally as busy as they would like to be.

The ideal match for our clinic would have a strong background in cognitive-behavioural therapy and have a Ph.D. in clinical psychology. We will also consider applicants who have completed all of the requirements for their doctorate or will be eligible for registration as a psychologist in BC within the next year.

We are looking for psychologists who are interested in joining our team either on a part-time or full-time basis. Please apply with CV and cover letter to nssac.team@gmail.com.